Last week in the House of Commons Prime Minister Trudeau admitted that he was told more than three years ago that Polymer Corp. paid nearly $2 million in kickbacks to customers, either in cash or in numbered Swiss bank accounts. Other allegations involving Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. and the Canadian Commercial Corp. have yet to be resolved.

Bribes and kickbacks are a necessary part of doing business in most of the world. If Canada is to compete at the multinational level in third world markets it must abide by a nefarious system in order to get business. Perhaps it is an inevitable distortion of a world economic system which operates on greed. The gentlemenly "finder's fee" of North America or Europe becomes the kickback in Asia or Africa. Third world entrepreneurs and officials must be amused at our hypocrisy in dealing with what they consider an honorable way of doing business

The central question for Canadians is not the kickbacks themselves, but fice his first responsibility is to the itself within the next few months the how the government covered the facts people of Canada. Yet he wrote the whole edifice will crumble, choking us

Trudeau passed the information on to cabinet colleagues but had no evidence that any action was ever taken to inform the Canadian public of the actions of its corporations. He simply forgot about this matter. It is also an intellectually stunted profession, con-cerned not with whether Mirabel airport, say, is a thundering great boondoggle to have been built at all but whether, once built, the contractors were paid the proper amounts in the proper way.

Thus it is fascinating to watch the consciousness-raising of Auditor-General J. J. Macdonnell. He's a roly-poly person, with silver hair, a hint of a Scottish burr, and a determined bulldog set to his jaw. He began his job in the shadow of his publicity-hungry predecessor Maxwell (The Knife) Henderson, ploughed through the government's accounts and in his own first report a year ago concluded that the government's financial control was

No one noticed. The press ran the usual stories woven out of anecdotal examples of government spending horrors. The opposition, sensing the press wasn't interested, wasn't interested itself.

In his second report this week, Macdonnell reached exactly the same conclusion. But changed his prose style. 'Parliament, and indeed the government, has lost or is close to losign effective controls of the public purse

Macdonnell still is new at the Ottawa so I would be very disappointed, says Macdonnell sounding exactly like an ac-countant fallen among politicians (bureaucratic politicians that is.) Not just disappointed, but angry—with almost calculated discourtesy, the officials neither discussed the terms of reference of the royal commission with Macdonnel nor even showed them to him.

Just because we know in our hearts that what Macdonnell is saying is right doesn't mean we should treat his report as if carved in stone. He assumes, too readithat governments can be run like corporations

So maybe Macdonnell exaggerates a bit in saying the government's financial control is "grossly inadequate." A better dis-cription would be sloppy and casual. Yet he is quite right to use shock tactics. He has recognized, I believe, that it is bureaucracy itself rather than just the financing of it that is out of control.

sick. Though Ottawa-bashing is a national sport, the provincial empires are as cor rupted. Nor is the problem in any way unique to Canada. Former U.S. Senator Sa Ervin, who has a gift for a phrase as well as for integrity, once compared the government panicked into setting up a washington bureaucracy to "the third royal commission. Tattered Morale

To cure the disease will take time. Brutal spending restraint will force departments, even without a comptrollergeneral to check their accounts, to spend their money better. Brutal personnel cuts will do the same. Britain next year will cut its civil service payroll by nine per cent; ours will increase by one per cent. Also, elimination of tenure — of the nearly 300,000 federal civil servants, just 211 were fired last year. This amounts to double protection, because no bureaucrat, unlike other Canadians, is ever laid off.

One other change. An end to saving of face as bureaucracy's highest goa higher even than growth. The reason Mac donnell's report was canned and a royal commission appointed to thumb-suck the problem for two years or so was because Privy Council Clerk Michael Pitfield and Treasury Board Secretary Gordon Osbaldeston convinced cabinet that civil service morale would be harmed. That morale already is in tatters. Maybe, just maybe, honesty would be the best policy to together the bureaucracy's

Procrastination

Indifference and total indolence currently characterizes government agen cies' attitude toward workers in B.C. By adopting such a passive attitude the B.C. Labor Relations Board is protecting management's interests and condoning management's illegal objectives. The employees of B.C.'s largest telephone answering service are presently facing this injustice.

The LRB procrastinated six months before reaching a decision concerning a trivial federal or provincial jurisdictional question. One and a half months after this been delivered by the LRB. So after 71/2 months these employees are still seeking union certification. Also they are still enduring abhorrent working conditions which induced them to form a union in the first place. In the interim of 7½ months the employees have endured harassment and intimidation by management. Threatening job security, interrogation of employees and promise of higher wages to those non-union members of staff are just a few of the illegal actions carried out by management. The employees have sought protection from the LRB against these activities. Yet the LRB cannot or will not rectify this unjust behavior of management. By this inaction the LRB is condoning the company's illegal objectives.

The fact of the matter is British Columbia's working people are helpless against these illegal activities because labor legislation does not grip their cause immediately. In theory, labor laws in B.C. appear noble but in practice they lack the teeth to protect the workers involved. Since the LRB is a byproduct of this quasilegislation, realistic motivation to aid the working-man is obliterated. The LRB is solely a paper-pushing institution. It promotes fear of losing one's livelihood, it prolongs impoverished working conditions by reducing the major issues to red tape ing standards. Now to the Crystal Pool building. It is at best an eyesore in its present state, and you can feel sick about the unimaginative thoughts of some of the wise men regarding what to do with it for the greatest benefit of the general public as well as for the enhancement of its aprance in such a strategic location. Simultaneously at this time the city is in a quandary to remedy the insufficient facilities and the lack of space at the central library. Also this location is, under present traffic conditions, undesirable. Will it not suggest itself to take the opportunity to use the location of the old Crystal Pool building? Quebec Election

I am deeply shocked by the panicky reaction of the news media, especially the CBC, to the recent election results in ebec. In my view by such action we are playing into the hands of the Parti

Mr. Trudeau has emerged as a statesman in his handling of the situation in spite of the fact that the rout of the Liberals must have been a great blow to him. In his statement to the news media Mr. Trudeau stated very ably that the new government in Quebec would be treated just like any other provincial government and that no talks or negotiations would be started vis-a-vis separation.

Surely that is the way to handle the new situation in that province.

In considering the results of the election one must accept the fact that the Liberals under Premier Bourassa gave the province very bad government and so the swing to the Parti Quebecois can be interpreted not as a vote for separation but as a protest vote. From reports one reads and hears on television and radio apparently the separatist vote in Quebec is only about 20 per cent and I feel it is a great mistake for Canadians outside Quebec to play up the problem of separa-tion. There is no provision under the BNA Act for a province to secede and so an amendment would have to be devised to amend the act to allow for such an eventuality. As the provinces appear to be hav-ing great trouble in finding a suitable for-mula for amending the BNA Act, surely any change, which would involve the right of a province to secede, is only a pipe dream.

Although I am not a Liberal I am proud of the statesmanlike attitude which has been adopted by Mr. Trudeau and I think it is very un-Canadian to try and inject politics into this very complex problem. When small men like Vander Zalm make fatuous statements it makes it more difproblem. I trust men of sanity will prevail.

Thankless Task

The task of the prime minister has got to have become the most thankless, worrisome and frustrating of any in Canada. No sooner does he prevent one sector of society from ruining us all than another at-tempts it. Now, in the last week, he was to face an entire nation bent on self-

At a time when one part of the country seems bent on separation it is expected that the leaders of other parts would close ranks and speak for sanity. Instead, here in B.C. the premier sympathizes with the separatist elements and a senior minister gleefully bids them good riddance. Then, to add insult to injury the cabinet in a secial secsion into additional to secsion in the second second second secsion in the second special session jokes about the entire affair. Meanwhile, from the province next door ominously enough comes no comment at all. And in Ottawa it is business as usual with the ambitious exploiting every opportunity to destroy the one man who might be able to hold us together.

Surely Canada deserves better than the idiots and incompetents whom in our greed and truculence we wilfully elect to office. How sad and ironic it is, just as we began to develop a national identity and take pride in ourselves as Canadians, we should let bigotry and self-seeking threaten us with no country at all.—R.M.,

CANCER

Each year, hundreds of Canacancer victims at the hands of quack in an already incurable condition buy promises which will never be fulfilled. Those who come when medical science can still be of help, purchase death.

Such deadly bargains are most often made today in the purchase of a drug preparation called laetrile. His Warnings Come True

Dr. Wilhelm Carl Heinrich Hueper's apartment in Bethesda, Md., is remarkably uncluttered, almost sterile. He gave away a good many of his belongings — books and papers particularly — last year when he thought he was about to

He has hung on to his anger, though Precise and professorial, it warms the room as he speaks in the lingering accents of his native Germany or writes at his small desk about the subject that has preoccupied his life: the mushrooming problem of cancer hazards in our environent and why, in his opinion, nobody has done nearly enough about it. Frail but mentally energetic at 82, Hueper has been recognized by cancer experts around the world as a pioneer in the study of cancer-causing agents, par-ticularly the growing number attributed to ugh most of us have never heard his and the sa "genius," in the words of one former top U.S. government health researcher. He was "alone in the entire world with his idea that this problem could have such a major impact . . leading environmental expert, a

Hueper also had a reputation in some circles as a curmudgeon, an abrasive sort who appalled some colleagues by ing his scientific findings in the Police Gazette

Hueper had trouble getting either government or industry to listen to his warnings and when people did listen, some were less interested in dealing with the exposure of citizens to cancer than in curing themselves of Hueper. But, though he was "harassed and persecuted," according to his admirers, he never backed down.

More than a decade ago, Hueper predicted that 70 to 80 per cent of cancer in origin. He urged government and industry to undertake studies to identify and set up legislation to control the production and use of cancer-causing substances (carcinogens), to minimize the exposure of in-dustrial workers and consumers.

Today researchers acknowledge that 70 to 90 per cent of all cancer is related to such factors - substances made or-used in industry, pollutants in our air and water, is in the food we eat, in cigarettes. Having failed to find any real cure for the disease (though some forms can be controlled), the cancer establishment, according to Hueper and other critics, still is not moving with responsible speed toward the alternative to cure-prevention.

Hueper says that, though the public has a thin smile, "not even researchers, not all of them." Industry, he says, "will do nothing voluntarily. If we have laws, they will do just the amount they are forced by law to do; if they can cheat, they will."

As technology advances, new hazards will continue to emerge, he says. "Cancer will be an eternal problem." And yet he chides the pessimists. "The public's frustration, the feeling that we are all helpless, is not valid. The danger can be imized . . . I've fought this for 50 years and I think we got somewhere. At one point in the '30s, he worked as an assistant director and pathologist at the Du Pont Co.'s Laboratory of Industrial Toxicology. There, he recalled, he had one of his first-hand encounters with some of the problems and attitudes of industry

He saw the Du Ponts' dye production facilities and advised Dupont concerning the danger of an epidemic of bladder cancer among the workers, such as had occurred in Switzerland, Germany and Bri-

'Mr. Du Pont's first answer was a to our lab and said, 'We have them now. Twenty-three cases of bladder cancer.' After that, they knew they had to face it the same as the European

A spokesman for Du Pont said the company considers this period of its history "tragic," adding that "it could be debated whether we took longer than we should have to take action." He said the company had notified its workers of the hazards and he disputed Hueper's contention that the mpany had not published information on the subject. The company's current policy he said, is "not to use hazardous chemicals unless we can do it safely."

Farm Market Seen in China

WASHINGTON (WP) —
American producers of farm machinery and agricultural chemicals are looking with modest hope toward China as a potential new market.

For centuries, Chinese agriculture has been based on the labor of armies of peasants using primitive farming techniques.

But there are hints of change in the air.

Executives attending a recent day-long seminar on leave their access to the potentially vast Chinese market.

Vikettes Pad Skein On One-Point Win

For the second time in as many nights Saturday, Uni-versity of Victoria Vikettes eked out a victory in the Can-ada West University Athletic Association women's basket-hall league ball league.

Vikettes extended their lea-gue-leading record to 6-0 by nipping Saskatchewan Hus-kiettes 68-67 at UVic's McKinnon Building.

UVik Vikings also emerged with a victory by dropping winless Huskies 72-63 in a maining but the visitors didn't have enough time left to sink a winning basket.

Vikette coach Mike Gallo, who was critical of his team's performance during a 65-54 win over the same club Friday night, said the UVice squad was lucky to win the game.

U.S. SUPREME COURT TO HEAR NIXON PLEA

WASHINGTON (Reuter) The United States Supreme Court agreed today to hear federal law that has made the tape recordings and papers of his administration public property.

The justices published, without comment, an order adding the Nixon appeal to the docket of cases they will hear and decide before their work year closes around work year closes around June, 1977.

The statute under fire, the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act, has been upheld by the U.S. Court of Appeals.

It walls off Nixon and members of his family, at least for the time being, from about 42 million pages of docyears, as well as 800 reels of tape from the hidden recorders that picked up conversa-tions in the Oval Office and other White House rooms.

The statute directs the General Services Administration, after careful screening of these records, to open the bulk of them to public inspec-

Led by guitaris Vladimir Mulyavin, Pesnyary has been at the top of the Russian pop charts since 1970, when the group won the Laureates prize at the Fourth All-Union Competition of Artists of Popular Music. Since then they've played all over the Soviet Union and in East Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and other hotbeds of hop music.

Now Gosconcerts, the of-ficial Societ concert agency, has decided they're ready for America. On Wednesday Pes-nyary will begin its first U.S. tour with a show in Harrison-burg, Va., to be followed by concerts in such major rock markets as Beckley, W. Va., Gastonia, N.C., Rome, Ga.,

In order to present these songs "so full of emotion, clarity of intonation . . . (and) sound Garris seems to be on poetic and musical imagery" to Americans, Pesnyary is taking a sizable cut in pay. In the Soviet Union, the group makes up to $30,000 a week; to something — one company is already seeking rights to publish their music, and Co-lumbia Records has donated eight hours in its Nashville studio to Pesnyary. here they'll be paid $3,000 a week, with Gosconcert assuming the cost of feeding the So don't be surprised if Angroup and its four-person road

"Falsecarding" is an important component of each bridge player's repertoire, since the occasions for its emsince the occasions for its em-ployment are rather frequent. Within this category is the section that might be clas-sified as "playing the card you are known to have." An example of this latter point is presented in today's deal, which came up in a team-offour match.

opening lead with the space king, led the four of clubs and finessed dummy's jack successfully. Then came the club king, West following suit with the ten. A third club lead to South's ace now felled West's queen, and declarer had himself four club tricks and his contract. When the deal was replayed, our new South declarer, as his counterpart had done, led a low club and finessed the board's jack. But when he next cashed dummy's king of clubs, West did not follow suit with the ten. Instead, he dropped the queen!

Put yourself in declarer's position. Wouldn't you assume that West had started with the doubleton Q-x? Our declarer did assume just that, and when he next led dummy's remaining club, he inserted his nine-spot, finessing against East's presumed ten. When West's ten-spot won the trick, declarer was en route to defeat, for there was no place where he could create his needed ninth trick. West's false-card of the club queen was the correct play. When the finesse of dummy's jack of clubs had proved successful. West was known successful, West was known to possess the queen. At the same time, West's queen and ten had become equals, tied for third behind the ace and king. Hence it could cost nothing to drop the queen on dummy's king, and create the illusion that West had no more clubs.

BING SINGS ON STRIP

LAS VEGAS - It was a cold and windy desert night, but Bing Crosby warmed the hearts of an estimated 6,000 persons with his first appearance on the Las Vegas Stripe

Close friends and business associates said the benefit performance for a Roman Catholic church will also likely be Crosby's last here.

The show was staged to help Rev. Ben Franzinelli, an activist priest who wants to move his flock into a new church.

Father Ben, as he is called, started Holy Family parish about 18 months ago, holding services in a country-western saloon. But the establishment has changed. It-s a topless disco now and Father Ben wants to move his congregation into a real church.

For more, than two hours Crosby and members of his family, along with singer Rosemary Clooney, the Joe Bushkin Quartet and British comic Ted Rodgers entertained in a new theatre.

Also on stage was Bing's partner from the old road show movies, Bob Hope. "He was funny years ago," Crosby said when asked if he remembered Hope.

Two of Crosby's sons were in the show — Harry playing classical guitar and Nathamel singing. Crosby's wife, Kathryn, and daughter Mary Frances danced in flowing Black Singer Exploited?

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. The heirs of Bessle Smith have filed suit against CBS, Inc., and Columbia Records, Inc., charging that the blues singer was deprived of money from her recordings because of her race.

The suit was filed in U.S. district court here by Jack Gee of Philadelphia — identified as the singer's son and the estate of Miss Smith's late husband, John Gee Sr. It charged that Columbia Records exploited singers who recorded for its black record

The suit contended that the defendants' predecessor companies never paid Miss Smith more than $200 for any of her songs recorded between 1923 and 1933.

Miss Smith died in 1997 from injuries suffered in an auto accident after a Mississippi hospital refused to treat her because she was black.

Harrisons Recalled by Times Readers

A month ago I told you an intriguing story, in this col-umn, of an English-style country home, in a densely treed acreage, close to Crow-ford Bay on Kootenay Lake.

Built in the early 1900s, and owned then by a man named Harrison, it had been abandoned and lost to sight for many years, and now was being carefully and lovingly

Interesting part of the story was that Harrison's wife, Lucy Caroline, was a great-granddaughter of Josiah, founder of the famed Wedgwood Potteries at Stokė-on-Trent, in England.

highest level at time of lifting from the ground, lessening during storage. Does this account for our end-of-winter craving for vi-tamin rich green foods fresh from the soil? Watercress and mustard-and-cress were 'the first two fresh saladings available in late winter; both were either raised in nearby greenhouses or imported from sources further south. But eastern Canadian cities depended on these two fresh products in the early part of this century to satisfy the natural craving for fresh greens during winter.

Today we know the impor-tance of a daily serving of fresh fruit or fresh (un-cooked) vegetable. And so we combine this with a serving of potato which is still rated as good food when used with other foods.

Most people eat potatoes but fail to use them in other ways than boiling or baking (or ready-made "fries"). Sometimes though, we can make extra use of potatoes by creating a delicious dish such as this first recipe. Grilled Whole Potatoes 4 medium potatoes

Suited For Fashion

By JENNIFER ANDERSON The man-tailored suit returns this fall. The trick is to look ultra-feminine when you wear it. Popular in the '20s, Paris Couturiers like Coco Chanel designed suits, shirts and ties and called it the "garçoones" look. But it wasn't until the '30s that Marlene Dietrich, Greta Garbo lene Dietrich, Greta Garbo and Katharine Hepburn made

The right shade in the fami-ly of colors mentioned will let ly of colors mentioned will let this make-up system work for blondes or redheads or brun-ettes. It's so natural and so basic, just what a good make-up should always be.

DEAR JENNIFER: My very long hair looks fine hanging down with dresses, but with pants and jackets it looks too thin and wispy. What can I do with it for a neater look? — Sylvia C.

This season try braiding it and wrapping the braids around your head. If it isn't that long, pull it back in a covered elastic band, braid the remaining hair into two prictails and coil them into a pigtails and coil them into a chignon. Bangs or a center part both work well with ei-

A Rose by Any Other Name . . .

In writing about Helleborus niger, its common name must be mentioned for there is no doubt that more gardeners know this lovely winter flo-where they can buy plants of the white rose that blooms at Christmas. A phone conversation on the subject must sound like a prize example of "crossed questions getting crooked answers" until sud-denly light breaks through.

This species of Helleborus is winter and it will do so here if the garden has sheltered corners where some amount of sunshine penetrates during the day, the year around. There are varieties having slightly tinted outsides to the sepals and slightly different times for blooming. They can be earlier or later, but are still varieties of Helleborus leborus has a thick rootstock, and the dark green leathery leaves grow directly from the crown of the plant, spreading like five fingers of hands over the surrounding soil. Pretty soon now the flower stems will be seen, also rising directly from the crown at soil level.

Each flowering stem has a small leaf which gives some protection to the flower buds it partially encloses. Usually two buds are already formed as the stem appears. They develop in the coming weeks until a mild spell encourages

The Helleborus genus is part of the Buttercup Family, Ranunculaceae, having much in common with buttercups, Ranunculus, after which the collar for the flowers is one deep rooting habit into damp

Rose is considered difficult to grow by gardeners who like to quently. Leave this plant to plete with self sown see-dlings; don't divide it under 10 to 12 years at the earliest.

Since this is a plant which is active during winter months, the best time to move one into the garden is early spring when winter flowering has ended. It will then have several months to recover and become acclimatized. A

Give it a plentiful supply of old cow manure, well rotted compost, leafmould, and some coarse sand if surrounding soil is a clay loam. Annual spring side dressing of either old manure or leaf-mould will continue the re-placement of humus, and a

Once familiar with Christmas Rose, Helleborus niger, other species will become equally desirable, flowering later and even into early summer. All grow well in Victoria

Bill Robinson, Bob Burrows, Bull Robinson, Boo Burrows, Dave Morgan and Brian MacKenzie stand as the four best floor reasons Victoria swept a weekend exhibition waries, 112-93 and 112-91.

There's also a good in-depth reason behind for success. To find it, you'd have to go back to last Tuesday's team work-

"After a bit of a meeting, we had a terrific workout," said team sponsor Ian Scott-Moncrieff. "The players dedded if they wanted to do anything this season, they'd better start doing things on the floor."

Emergence of a "time-togo-to-work" attitude produced two compleat team efforts.

Robinson, Burrows, Morgan and MacKenzie helped. Robinson, Burrows and MacKenzie, who missed Scorpions; first series in Renton, accounted for 116 points while Morgan contributed another, including 22 in Sunday's 112-91 decision.

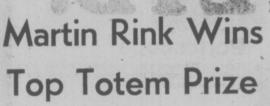

Robinson led the way with 47, including 25 Saturday.

Scorpions assigned MacKenzie to control Renton's brilliant Lenny Kemp. A 25-point producer Saturday, Kemp free-wheeled for 26 in the first half Sunday. With MacKenzie going to work on Kemp, the Roadrunner ace scored only 10 points in the second half. Kurt Morgan scored 43 points for Renton, including 24 Saturday, while Arvey Johnston added 41.
